What is a Liver Transplant Surgery?

Liver transplantation or hepatic transplantation is the replacement of a diseased liver with the healthy liver from another person. Liver transplantation is a treatment option for end-stage liver disease and acute liver failure.

According to the National Institutes of Health (NIH) cirrhosis is the 12th leading cause of death due to disease in the United States.

Some of the major complications and possible risk that accompanies a liver transplant procedure include the following:

Death

Sepsis

Multiple organ failiure

Failure of the Lungs

Cuts made during surgery getting ruptured (also referred to as a hernia)

Infection caused by bacteria

Damage or leakage to the bile duct

Failure of the donated liver

How can "Heal The World" a revolutionary health care alternative therapy organization can stop patient undergoing a major and deadly liver transplant surgery?

We had a patient with final stage of liver cirrhosis approached us 21 days back. He was about to undergo liver transplant in India.

He was based in Middle East Region. He came to India to undergo major transplant surgery. Now, we have completed 21 days of his healing sessions.

Please find enclosed image of his liver and comparisons report of his health before and after healing sessions.

What is Liver Cirrhosis?

Cirrhosis develops when the factors that damage the liver (such as alcohol and chronic viral infections) are present over a long period of time. When this happens, the liver becomes injured and scarred.

A patient's liver functions fail and eventually results in liver cirrhosis. Cirrhosis causes the liver to shrink and harden. In some cases, a severe pain in upper abdominal noticed. It might come and go and sometime it could be throbbing unbearable pain in the right upper abdomen area.

If the patient is suffering from final stage of liver cirrhosis, your hepatologists might suggest for a liver transplant.

We have just completed 21 days of treatment and seen major improvements in his liver functioning.

What are the next 5 top priorities for Heal The World Healing Team?

1. Make his liver fully functional, ensure liver produces enough liver cells and all liver enzymes are in normal range. Ensure Liver out of any inflammation or infections.

4. Reduce the stomach size and drain out fluid naturally
